Customer Reviews

I looked high & low for this book, mainly electronically, but could not find it. I read it over thirty years ago and wanted to read it again. It was written in the 1930s and is a wonderful novel about "the woman behind the man" concept. So I was thrilled when I found a used copy of it on .The book includes 2 full length novels by Frances Parkinson Keyes. My review is about the story called Queen Anne's Lace. (I haven't had time to read Lady Blanche Farm, yet.) It provides an interesting insight into the lives of women, their strengths and their burdens. It takes place in a far different time than ours but the themes are universal. Anne is born in raised in rural Connecticut and falls in love with a young, ambitious lawyer named Neill. Her intelligence, frugality, work ethic, spirit, etc... supports her husband through good times and bad all the way to being President. The events of this novel could no longer happen now in our day and age - but its an inspiring read. I think it would be a great movie.

Just like I remembered! I had read these books, as well as everything else written by France's Parkinson's Keyes, when I was young and loved them. Now, over a half century later, I was feeling nostalgic and bought them to read again. I still loved them and it made me feel happy to revisit them. "Queen Anne's Lace" deals with politics and a convention - so different from today and our age of instant communication.
