Grandma Doralee Patinkin's Jewish Family Cookbook: More Than 150 Treasured Recipes From My Kitchen To Yours

Synopsis

The Emmy and Tony Award-winning performer Mandy Patinkin has long sung the praises of his mother's cooking, from her out-of-this-world chicken soup with matzo balls to her triple-threat brownies. Now in trade paperback, this straight-from-the-heart cookbook brings together home-cooked recipes and memories that have nurtured several generations. Spanning appetizers to desserts, from everyday delights to special occasions, recipes include: --Grandma Doralee's Chicken Salad --Potato Latkes --Sweet-and-Sour Cabbage --Lemon Artichoke Chicken --Rack of Lamb with Red Pepper Marinade --Carrot Pudding --Spinach Noodle Souffle --Butter Crisps --Fruit Kuchen --Kahlua Cheesecake --Passover Sponge Cakes --and much more. With an introduction by Mandy Patinkin, this delightful and down-to-earth cookbook brings together three generations, one extraordinary mom, and more than 150 irresistible ways to bring tradition and love to the family table.

Customer Reviews

I bought this because I was looking for easy but delicious passover recipes. Doralee Patinkin Rubin really came through for me. Her apple cake and Baked Chicken a l'orange were great. I made a few other recipes and they were thoroughly enjoyed. Her recipes if not all technically kosher come from that great tradition of Jewish women many of us were fortunate enough to have as mothers and grandmothers.

For both traditional and modernized Jewish soul food, this book has quickly become a treasured resource. The recipes are straightforward, not pretentious or gratuitously glamorous, and are delicious and easy to prepare. It's traditional ethnic dishes and more, with a wonderful, friendly emphasis on entertaining and sharing events and holidays with families, making food a part of the memories.

this is what she would make. Delicious, festive and family dishes that bring back memories are supplemented with new staples of the American diet, which make this an all around good cookbook for nostalgia and more. The food is hearty, wholesome, easy to prepare and shop for; not special ordering or trips running around town for esoteric ingredients. And like any good grandma's recipes, emphasizes entertaining family and friends with old favorites as well as experimentation. I highly recommend it.

Doralee Patinkin's cookbooks are two of my all-time favorites (and I'm not Jewish, so they should appeal to everyone with taste buds). Every recipe I've tried has been absolutely wonderful. Directions are clear, and each recipe is preceded by a brief description of why it is a favorite. The forward is by actor Mandy Patinkin, and the comments about some recipes include his passion for him. These books are very warmly written, and filled with tried-and-true family favorites which will be just as successful in the readers's homes. Absolutely wonderful!

This book brings me back to my mother's kitchen. It brings back memories and even the smells of the Gefilte Fish and the Challah baking in the oven. I made her Artichoke Dip and the people who tasted it, cried. I've been cooking for many years and never have I read such a nostalgic Jewish cookbook. I am waiting with baited breath for her next cookbook.

What a disappointment. Although this cookbook has some interesting recipes and could probably be considered a good cookbook, it is definitely not a Jewish cookbook. Several of the recipes include shrimp and crab meat and a number of the menus combine meat and dairy. The preface includes a statement that the book "is not a kosher cookbook" but the online description failed to include that warning.

Love this Jewish Cookbook but I love having pictures also to show what my food should look like. The pictures are in red and white...disappointed in that part. The cookbook offers lots of recipes but not in color.
